From early planting progress to fresh ideas for game day snacking, here's what's happening in the fields and what's trending on the table.

April 2026

FIELD NOTES

We're setting a strong pace in the Pacific Northwest, where pea planting started about ten days earlier than last year.

In the Midwest, planting will start in April, with full field work ramping up in May. We're finishing up contracts, with most agreements already settled and others expected to close soon.

IN THE WORKS

Right now, it's all about the "pre-game" hustle—preparation, precision, and partnership. Since most of our crops aren't in the ground yet, we're busy fine-tuning plans to make sure everything hits the ground running once planting season peaks.

Peas are already kicking off in the PNW, and things are going to get busy fast as we head into April and May. Our sourcing, ops, and production teams are basically attached at the hip right now, making sure we start strong and keep that supply steady all year long.

1" CORN COB PINWHEELS

THE WHEELS ARE ON

Corn cob pinwheels pick up flavor from the ingredients in the dishes they share. From classic American favorites to globally inspired flavors, they're an easy way to add something unexpected to the menu without adding complexity to the kitchen.

AMERICAN FLAVORS

Skillet-seared corn pinwheels tossed in garlic herb butter with cracked pepper and shaved parmesan

Oven-roasted pinwheels glazed with smoky BBQ butter and finished with crispy bacon crumble

Cajun-spiced pinwheels flash-fried and served with remoulade

Honey-chipotle glazed pinwheels finished with lime zest and fresh cilantro

Boiled pinwheels with Old Bay seasoning

Buttered pinwheels with parsley and sea salt for steam-table service

GLOBAL FLAVORS

Mexican elote-style with chili-lime crema, cotija, and cilantro

Korean gochujang glaze sesame seeds and scallions

Indian tandoori-spiced with yogurt marinade and fresh herbs

Thai-inspired with coconut-lime butter and chili flakes

Japanese miso-butter with furikake and scallions

Peruvian aji amarillo glaze with queso fresco

Mediterranean lemon-herb with olive oil, oregano, and feta

Caribbean jerk-seasoned with pineapple-lime glaze
