FIELD NOTES

Pea harvest is officially underway in the Pacific Northwest, with early yields tracking to budget and overall crop conditions looking strong. Harvests in Minnesota and Wisconsin are also off to a strong start. Planting for corn, green beans, and lima beans has remained on schedule, while carrot planting has recently wrapped up and beet planting is progressing as planned. Overall, crops are developing well across regions, with teams continuing to monitor conditions closely as the season gains momentum.

IN THE WORKS

The 2026 growing season is off to a steady start, with planting tracking on schedule across our growing regions. Corn, beans, lima beans, carrots, and beets are all progressing well, supported by favorable crop conditions and strong field execution. While additional rainfall would be welcome in the Pacific Northwest, the overall outlook remains positive as teams focus on delivering another season of quality and consistency for our customers.
